

Name: Danny Zerkel

Class of works: I am writing in support of Class #1 (Copy-Protected CDs): Sound recordings released on compact disc ("CDs") that are protected by technological protection measures that malfunction so as to prevent access on certain playback devices.

Summary:

Disc name: Bloodflowers by The Cure

CD, as purchased, had "extra" stuff (i.e., both multimedia data and audio) on it that prevented by office computer from playing the music. I attempted to make a copy of the CD without the extra stuff, but was unsuccessful because of the copy protection. The only reason I buy CDs is to listen to them at work, occasionally at home or in my car. Since the problem occurred, the number of CDs I buy has gone way down. I don't think I bought any new CDs last year. I don't steal music; I buy what I like, when I can afford it.
